NEXT SEMINAR OF THE CYCLE FOR THE STUDY OF A FREE SOCIETY

On Wednesday June 22 at 5 pm Dr. Ayelén Sánchez, fellow of the Friedman Hayek Center, will give the presentation: “Ser libre” se dice de muchas maneras: Algunas herramientas filosóficas para pensar de qué hablamos cuando hablamos de libertad” (“Being free” is said in many ways: Some philosophical tools to think about what we are talking about when we talk of freedom).

During this talk some of the most important meanings that the concept of human freedom acquires will be analyzed. The presentation will try to show that, even though there exists a diversity of ways of conceiving freedom, that does not mean that they are all equally valid. Especially, it will propose a reflection with regard to the intimate connections that exist between the possibility of being free and our constitution as rational beings.

PRESENTIAL SEMINAR – LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF THE URUGUAYAN EXPERIENCE

We promote this event of interest for the community of the Center, organized jointly with CESCOS.

Uruguayan democracy is the most solid in the region. The country has excellent institutional indicators and good social and economic indicators. However, it faces important challenges in the difficult path to development. What are these challenges? What are the tools for facing them? Is there really a consensus among the different parties and actors to start implementing a set of necessary reforms?

The event will be face-to-face at the UCEMA Auditorium.
